

Registration is OPEN!

Course starts on Sep 18, 2023

ONLINE COURSE on FutureLearn

Akichi in Collections Management

Perspectives from a Japanese University Museum

Discover a new approach to collections management

Build expertise in collections management as you explore the role of community and sharing in university museums

In 2021, Keio University pioneered a new approach to collections management at its university museum, KeMCo. The museum opened up a creative akichi (an open space for community collections) and welcomed the public for a variety of activities.

On this two-week course, you'll find out more about Keio's innovations in collections management. You'll explore concepts like community, sharing, and akichi, discussing their role in modern-day collections management in University museums.

Course Duration: 2 Weeks, Weekly Study: 3 Hours

You can register for this course with the QR code or URL

Register

<https://bit.ly/fl-akichi>
Join for Free

What is FutureLearn?

FutureLearn is a leading social learning platform, enabling online learning through conversation - with over 18 million learners. Keio University is a partner of FutureLearn, and has been offering online course since 2016. Currently, 11 courses are available (as of Aug, 2023).

Educators
from Keio Museum Commons

Yohko Watanabe
Professor/Curator

Yu Homma
Senior Assistant Professor/Curator

Shiho Hasegawa
Research Fellow

Goki Miyakita
Senior Assistant Professor

For Japanese Learners

本コースは英語で開講されているコースです。日本語での講座概要や登録方法の詳細はこちらの URL または QR コードからご参照ください。

<https://www.fl-keio.info/intro/>

Research Institute for Digital Media and Content, Keio University
TEL: +81-(0)45-548-5807 Email: jimu-dmc@adst.keio.ac.jp

Contact